

Larkin

Tree at 4 years of age, grown in Central Florida.

Larkin

LARKIN is an example of precocity. These plants are one year old. The plant on the left shows flowering in April; the plant below shows fruit in June.

Precocious, followed by regular fruiting has led to smaller plant size with this variety.

Larkin

Fruit grown in Central Florida and harvested in early September 2015.

